

REASONS TO PARTNER WITH A MSP

Top Reasons Long Term Care Facilities Need a MSP:

Cyber Security / Patient Data

With long-term care facilities increasingly relying on electronic health records (EHRs) and telehealth, MSPs serve as an essential safeguard against cyber threats and a key enabler of operational efficiency.

In healthcare, a MSP, or Managed Service Provider, is crucial for long-term care facilities as it helps streamline workforce management, improve operational efficiency, and ensure compliance with regulations, ultimately allowing staff to focus on patient care.

Improved efficiency, decreased spending, and industry trends are just a few other things to mention.

Workforce Management:

MSPs manage contingent labor (temporary staff, agency workers) efficiently, reducing the burden on nursing homes to recruit, vet, and manage these workers.

Operational Efficiency:

By automating tasks like payroll, vendor management, and scheduling, MSPs free up staff time and resources, allowing them to focus on patient care.

Regulatory Compliance:

MSPs ensure compliance with healthcare regulations, such as HIPAA and OSHA, by managing workforce-related processes and ensuring that all staff members meet required standards.

Improved Patient Care:

By streamlining operations and ensuring a well-staffed environment, MSPs contribute to improved patient care outcomes.

Cost Savings:

MSPs can help reduce costs associated with managing contingent labor, such as recruitment fees and training expenses.

Access to Talent:

MSPs often have access to a broader pool of qualified healthcare professionals, making it easier for nursing homes to find the right staff.

IT Infrastructure:

MSPs can also take on the responsibility of managing IT infrastructure, ensuring that it is always up and running so that medical equipment can be used and healthcare professionals can devote more time to patient care.
